Tokio Rocked by Big Earthquake; Nine Are Killed

Many Injured in Suburb of Capital Where Heavy Damage Was Inflicted—Shake as Severe as 1923 Catastrophe—Schools Collapsed—Communications Disrupted

TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 21 (CDN).—A severe and protracted earthquake rocked the Tokyo district at 11:15 a.m. today (9:37 p.m. Sunday, New York time).

In the adjoining prefecture of Saitama, five miles northwest of Tokyo, nine persons were killed, many were injured and considerable damage was done, but the shock was severe in the Tokyo prefecture, forty miles northwest of the capital, where its intensity equalled that of the big earthquake of September, 1923.

In these two prefectures telegraphic, telephonic and railway communications were disrupted. Some school buildings collapsed while nearly all were forced to suspend sessions.

One tunnel on the route to the Sumner resort of Karuizawa collapsed and railroad communications were cut off.

Fortunately the severest strain was in the country districts, though momentarily the earthquake created considerable alarm in Tokyo.

WOMAN DIES AFTER SMASH

Miss G. W. Scott Fatally Injured When Hit by Car on Quadra Street

An inquest into the death of Miss Grace W. Scott, age fifty-five, 752 Pembroke Street, will be held at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Parlors at 11 a.m. tomorrow. Miss Scott was killed at the corner of Quadra and Quadra Streets Saturday night by an automobile driven by F. A. Nickells, of Saanich Road.

Mr. Nickells, who is secretary for the Lemon, Comstock, Lumber Company, was released after being questioned by police, but his machine was held at headquarters.

The automobile was proceeding north along Quadra Street when Miss Scott was struck down. Mr. Nickells did not see anyone at the crossing. It was about 8:30 o'clock in the evening and the street at that point was dark.

FELT IMPACT
Impact of the machine against the body of Miss Scott as she walked across the roadway was the first intimation that Mr. Nickells had that tragedy was riding with him. He stopped the car and got out. At first he could see no one. Then he saw the injured woman beneath the car.

BRAIN IS PIERCED
She apparently had been struck by the radiator, as the steel network had bent in by her shoulder. A lance-like ornament on the radiator cap, it is believed, pierced the woman's brain over the left eye. Her collar bone and right arm were fractured, and both legs in the right leg were broken.

The victim was taken to the Jubilee Hospital in the police ambulance and Dr. F. M. Bryant, after examining her, gave no hope for recovery. She died from the injuries at 10:35 p.m.

IDENTIFY WOMAN

For some time police were unable to identify the woman, but eventually her name was discovered through a library book, which was identified at the public library.

Miss Scott was housekeeper for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart, of 752 Pembroke Street. She had been residing here for about two and a half years, having come from Vancouver, where her relatives reside. She is survived by a brother, Charles Scott, and a niece, Mrs. Thomas Diamond, both of Vancouver. The relatives are leaving Vancouver today to arrange for the funeral.

INQUEST TO BE HELD

The body has been taken to Hayward's B.C. Funeral Parlors, where an inquest will be held by Coroner E. C. Hart.

B. C. Bonds Are Not Affected by Change in Standard Coinage

ABANDONMENT by Great Britain of the gold standard will have but little, if any, adverse reflection on Provincial securities, but may, on the other hand, be of advantage in a measure to the Treasury, it was stated.

When, during the war, the gold standard was temporarily suspended, certain long-term British Columbia bonds payable in sterling depreciated to a great extent, and were immediately bought in by the Government here.

Very few bonds are now held in Great Britain on a sterling basis, and no securities of the province are maturing.

U.S. TRAIN ROBBERS GIVEN LONG TERMS

SAANICH, Sept. 19 (AP).—Conviction and sentence of twenty-five years each in a Federal penitentiary was meted out to three participants in the Nobel train robbery here last October 7, by a Federal jury and judge.

Those convicted of the robbery, which was accomplished with machine guns, rifles and dynamite, were Charles Berta, E. R. Sherwood and Mrs. Ellen Ellis. Mrs. Ellis, husband, leader of the gang, was slain during an attempt to capture him.

Another machine, coming in the opposite direction, struck the left fender of Mr. Earl's car and jolted it to the side of the road. Mr. Earl's young son was tossed from the seat and suffered injuries to the back of his head. He was taken home by a doctor summoned.

According to police, the other car, believed to be a Nash coupe, failed to stop, and proceeded on its way toward Sidney.

MOTORIST IS NEAR DEATH

Stanley Fell Critically Injured in Automobile Accident on Island Highway

Stanley Fell, of 1312 Brooke Street, lies near death in the St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of a head-on collision between two automobiles on the Island Highway yesterday.

Mr. Fell, who is an attendant at the Super Service Station at the corner of Johnson and Blanshard Streets, suffered punctures of the chest. One piece of steel from the machine he was driving pierced his chest and severed several arteries, but narrowly missed important blood vessels, the puncturing of which would have meant almost instant death.

The accident occurred at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, near Parson's Bridge at Six-Mile House, on the Island Highway.

WENT OVER BANK

Mr. Fell was driving to the city with several companions when his machine collided head-on with a car being driven north by Fred J. Baggis, address unknown.

The car driven by Fell plunged over the embankment on the south side of the bridge and came to a stop in a field of clover. The other occupants of the car were badly shaken but uninjured.

Provincial Police Constable A. G. Carmichael attended and had Mr. Fell removed to St. Joseph's Hospital where his condition is grave. Dr. A. C. Sinclair is attending him.

European Exchanges Close—Montreal and New York Take Action to Meet Emergency—India Ceases Sale of Gold and Closes Banks—Bourse Curbs Speculation

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Great Britain went off the gold standard last night, following a conference of the Treasury with Bank of England officials, and suspended the gold standard under the Act of 1925, which obliged the Bank of England to sell gold at a fixed price. The Act was coincidental with the British return of sterling to par on the gold standard.

The Government decision to suspend foreign gold payments followed terrific foreign and British sales of British securities which Friday and Saturday reached the alarming total of $137,000,000. These made the climax of the record gold rush against the pound sterling, which began the second day of the Seven-Power Conference in London.

During July, more than $170,000,000 in sterling was withdrawn from London by Paris, Brussels and Amsterdam. A total of more than $1,000,000,000 has been withdrawn from the London market since that date.

BANK RATE RAISED

In efforts to check this, the Bank of England raised the bank rate from 2 1/4 to 3 1/4 per cent, a week later to 4 1/2, and today to 6 per cent. All this was of no avail.

At the same time, it increased the "fiduciary" by $375,000,000. And as the fiduciary is that part of the currency in circulation not backed by the legal gold reserve, Great Britain had already loosened the leash of the fixed gold standard by exactly that sum.

The drain still continued. Bankers' credits of $250,000,000 were arranged by France and America to help peg the pound. These evaporated.

Another huge gold credit of $400,000,000 was quickly arranged, and almost immediately the Labor Government fell before the "national" formation, and the cut of 10 per cent from the unemployment insurance dole. There were rumors in the City of London Friday that more than 70 per cent of this $400,000,000 had been exhausted. And then these facts stated British financiers in the face.

The London Stock Exchange has suspended, pending ratification by Parliament of legislation which will be introduced and passed through the House of Commons today.

Following the announced closing of the London Stock Exchange, virtually all similar institutions throughout Europe will, or have already shut their doors.

All German stock exchanges closed for today, and it is likely that they will remain so until further orders. The Amsterdam exchange is reported closed. The currency of the Free City of Danzig, which has been based on sterling, was today taken to the pound and put on a gold basis.

REFUSES BONDS

The Paris Bourse has refused to make quotations on sterling or international shares and bonds.

The Oslo and Stockholm Exchanges are shut.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald in a personal note to The Chicago Daily News London representative, E. Price Bell, explained the situation tersely as follows:

"At the end of the week the exchanges rushed in an avalanche against us, and we are now forced on to our second line of defence. Therefore, however, we ought to score victories; if the situation is properly handled, we should be stronger than we have been."

As late as Saturday night it was believed that the monetary crisis had been controlled, but developments early Sunday compelled the Premier to return from Chequers, his country residence, and assemble the Cabinet. Confronted with a report of financial experts of a devastating drain on the gold resources, quick action was imperative.

The result was the abandonment of gold payments and the temporary closing of the stock exchange.

The difficulty arose from foreign alarm and foreign liquidation of British holdings. The action of the fleet at Invergordon in striking against the budget economies is credited, by at least one leading financial man of London, with contributing to the decline of confidence among foreign investors in the integrity of the pound sterling.

APPEAL TO LEAGUE

Besides lodging vigorous protest with the Japanese Government, Wang said appropriate steps will be taken to apprise the League of Nations and signatories of the Kellogg Pact of the "unwarranted action on the part of Japanese troops."

The Foreign Minister added that the Government is prepared to "lay all facts before the world so that it could be judged which party was the aggressor."

PROFFER ASSISTANCE

Reports from Canton said "Sun Fo and other leaders of the Southern insurgent movement have expressed themselves in favor of peace between Nanking and Canton so as to present a united front to the Japanese aggression in Manchuria."

President Chiang Kai-Shek, upon receipt of news of the crisis, made arrangements to return to Nanking immediately from Hunan, where he has been directing an anti-bandit campaign.

Immediate cessation of hostilities by Japanese troops in and about Mukden and their withdrawal to their original positions was demanded in a vigorous note sent by Foreign Minister C. T. Wang today to Japanese Minister Shigemitsu for transmission to Tokyo.

MUKDEN OCCUPIED

This action followed receipt of reports of the fighting in and about Mukden yesterday, which resulted in casualties on both sides and in Japanese occupation of the city.

INDIA STOPS GOLD

The Bombay stock exchange is closed today. The Viceroy issued an order temporarily relieving the Government of its obligation under the Currency Act to sell gold sterling. All banks and markets were ordered closed for the day.

BONNEVILLE REFLOATED

Her cargo lightened, the Norwegian motorship Bonneville, was refloated yesterday by the Pacific Salvage Company's steamer Salvage King, from her stranded position at the north end of Thetis Island.

The freighter was towed into Esquimalt harbor at six o'clock last night, when the remaining portion of her freight was discharged preparatory to being drydocked for survey.

The ship's hull was punctured in several places, and only by putting air compressors aboard and lightening the cargo was the salvage king able to pull the ship free of the rocks.

The Bonneville went ashore at two o'clock Saturday morning during a dense fog while she was en route to Chemainus from Vancouver. She grounded-bow-on, so that most of her damage is confined to forward of the engine room.

Built at Odessa in 1929, the Bonneville is a vessel of 4,668 tons. In length she is 395 feet. She is owned by Klaveness Line, which operates ships from this coast to South China.

NONMEMBERS OF LEAGUE INVITED

United States Asked to Take Part in Discussion of Disarmament Committee

GENEVA, Sept. 19 (AP).—The League of Nations Assembly issued a formal invitation tonight to the discussion of the Assembly's disarmament committee.

The invitation was decided upon by the Assembly's bureau, or steering committee, and formally issued by Nicholas Titulescu, President of the Assembly.

The important question before the disarmament committee is the proposal for a "holiday" in naval construction until the disarmament conference, which is scheduled to convene in February, 1932, is concluded.

Mr. Titulescu, who is secretary for the League of Nations Assembly, was questioned by police, but his machine was held at headquarters.

The automobile was proceeding north along Quadra Street when Miss Scott was struck down. Mr. Nickells did not see anyone at the crossing. It was about 8:30 o'clock in the evening and the street at that point was dark.

Her collar bone and right arm were fractured, and both legs in the right leg were broken.

THE VICTIM WAS TAKEN TO THE JUBILEE HOSPITAL IN THE POLICE AMBULANCE and Dr. F. M. Bryant, after examining her, gave no hope for recovery. She died from the injuries at 10:35 p.m.

For some time police were unable to identify the woman, but eventually her name was discovered through a library book, which was identified at the public library.

LANDING PLACE UNSATISFACTORY

The Flying Vacationists Were Not Received as Officials Had Planned at Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Sept. 19 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here today for a four-day stay, but because the colonel was not satisfied with the place officials had picked for him and his wife, his reception was somewhat delayed.

The flying vacationists arrived over the city at 2:36 o'clock this afternoon. After circling several times over the flooded Yangtze River, he finally alighted on Lotus Lake, just outside Nanaimo's rambling city wall.
City dignitaries, however, had arranged for him to land on the waterfront, where they had constructed a special wharf to which his monoplane was to be moored. And had several platoons of soldiers and some refreshments on hand.
The Lindberghs made the 800-mile flight from Fukuoka, Japan, in about seven and one-half hours.

EXPERTS DECLARE B.C. PLACERS HOLD MILLIONS IN GOLD

cated in the Cariboo. Cedar Creek demonstrates not only that there are rich gravels yet to be discovered but that there are shallow, easily worked gravels that have escaped the eye of the old-timers, even where there was a clue that might be followed up.

MILLIONS AVAILABLE

The report continues: "The Bullion mine is in an old channel of the present river by a narrow wall of rock. This channel is about 1,000 feet wide at the top and 300 feet at the bottom and about 400 feet deep. The present channel is about 1,500 feet up-channel from Dancing Bull gulch, where the channel was discovered and the workings began. Operations on an estimated scale (15,000,000 cubic yards washed) afford a basis upon which to estimate gold content. J. G. Hobson, under whom most of this work was done, estimated that in this and neighboring channels his company had 500,000,000 cubic yards of workable gravels containing $100,000,000 in gold. This estimate would include approximately ten miles of channel comparable to that at Dancing Bull gulch, which, considering the length of channels in the group, does not appear to be wholly unreasonable.

HALF ESTIMATE

"This is over twice as much gold as the Barkerville area produced. The known or probable channels such as those mentioned above in the East Cariboo block would contain about six times as much gravel computed at half Hobson's tested value the gold content is $300,000,000. Minerals of the platinum group (platinum, palladium and osmium) occur with the gold. . . These figures, while obviously very rough and not to be considered as engineer's estimates, suggest the general order of magnitude of quantities of gravel and gold content that may be present in the block."

It is pointed out that quantity and gold content are only two of the factors necessary for successful operation. But the writer asserts, "The evidence is made for all other factors 'there must be a great deal of ground that could be profitably handled and that might support large enterprises over a long period of time.' To be successful they must be undertaken in a scientific, businesslike manner. Intensive geological study, followed by geophysical testing to determine the gold channels is recommended and it is suggested that the Geological Survey of Canada and the British Columbia Department of Mines might co-operate in these undertakings."

Mr. Galloway, in his reference to the placer areas on Rainbow Creek, says that the gold is fine and is not of local origin. "The largest piece so far found is valued at 75 cents and most of the gold recovered in actual mining in the canyon is relatively fine," he comments. Despite this fineness he thinks that the ground is worth further prospecting, although it is shallow in the canyon.

Touching upon conditions above the canyon it is pointed out that test work so far carried out has not reached bedrock in the valley of the creek, although at intervals gold has been reached. The general condition disclosed by this work is a top-run of gravel from two to ten feet thick overlying glacial clay. These overlying gravels always show colors of gold, which, however, are so fine that the value per yard is quite low. It is stated that interesting possibilities are indicated from the presence of low values in the top gravels throughout the length of the creek.

ADVISES TESTING

Mr. Galloway adds that "it is quite possible that below the clay, gravel will be found resting on bedrock and this gravel may be comparable in richness with that found in the canyon. The inference is that Rainbow Creek from the canyon upstream 'cell warrants drilling to determine bedrock values.' From assay values of about forty samples of black sand concentrates obtained by panning, rocking and sluicing operations it has been determined that the platinum content in the values is not of major importance," declares the provincial mineralogist.
"An old channel of Rainbow Creek is definitely discernible to the west of the canyon. This warrants testing either by pits or drilling."
Dr. J. T. Macdonald pointed out that the production of the Atlin district increased in 1930 as against the previous year. This was significant, but it is of the opinion that a much greater advance may be expected in the future. Only one company, the Compagnie Francaise d'Or du Canada, which came into partial production in 1930 and promises greater production during the 1931 season, has reached the point of production. There are other large operations engaged in preparatory work. In considering all factors Atlin promises a substantial increase in gold output.

NO WORD OF AIRMEN

BREMERTON, Wash., Sept. 19 (AP)—The navy radio station here tonight reported that it had heard no word up to 9 p.m. of Moyle and Allen, California flyers, scheduled to leave the Siberian coast yesterday on a flight to Nome, Alaska.

stated, were confined to the shallow and rich creek ground and although most of this type of ground on the original creek has been worked out practically no serious effort has been made by prospectors to discover similar deposits on other creeks.

Dr. Mandy directs attention to the divide west and east between Gladys and Surprise Lakes where there are numerous creek-troughs which seem to warrant intensive investigation for virgin deposits of both shallow and deep ground tractable to the individual operator and deeper ground suitable for drifting or hydraulic operations.

MANSON CREEK AREA

The operations in the Quesnel, Cariboo and Omineca mining divisions are described by Douglas Lay, resident mining engineer, Hazelton. With respect to placer mining in the Manson Creek region, which has been attracting considerable attention in recent months, Mr. Lay states that a feature of the year has been the renewal of activity in this section.

On Slate Creek systematic drilling of old channels is being carried on by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited under the direction of W. Ogilvie, and on Germanen River, Germanen Placers Limited, under the management of R. C. McCorkell has a force of upwards of thirty men engaged on actual construction.

Germanen Placers Limited holds leases covering some miles of the river above and below the town of Nalim and it is proposed to hydraulic bedrock gravels, diverting the entire river above the pit by means of a flume, and elevating gravels by hydraulic elevator, keeping pit drained by means of a bedrock drain.

In his account of mining in the Cariboo district at this time, Mr. Lay states that an syndicate under the management of G. P. Dickson has continued the investigation of placer gravels contained in a number of leases on the Goat River and the Fraser River near the confluence of these streams. This work was started in 1930 and consists of drilling and other test work. This year a plan is being installed consisting of a caterpillar gas-shovel to dig the gravel and suitable gold-saving equipment. While this construction is being carried out further testing of the leases on the Goat River is also proceeding.

GOOD RETURNS

The Lowhee Mining Company, operating on Lowhee Creek near Barkerville, has been hydraulic mining steadily this season. Water conditions have been favorable and a good return is expected to be obtained. On Cunningham Creek Trehouse Hydraulic has had a good year. The first clean-up yielded $1,600. Water has not been plentiful, but the high grade ground encountered will compensate for this handicap.

REOPEN PROPERTY

The Consolidated Gold Alluvials of B.C., which now controls the Lightning Creek Gold Gravels and Drainage Company's property on Lightning Creek, is proceeding with development work. The No. 2 shaft, near Windham, is being reentered with a view to reopening it and testing the bedrock gravels. Further development drilling is reported to be planned to test other sections of the ground. This resumption of work at this old property is interesting and it is to be hoped that the possibilities of the area will be thoroughly appraised.

A new type of placer dredge is being tried out on the Fraser River, four miles above Quesnel. This is known as "Woods Placer Dredge" and consists of a scow with a mechanical digger under water, powered by a Ford engine. The ground to be worked is believed to be a downstream continuation of "Rainbow Creek" which was extensively worked by Chinese in early days. Good pay is reported in the ground to be worked, which is held under option by the owner, John Slavin. Neil Sutherland is in charge of this operation.

IMPORTANT FIND

One mile above Cottonwood House on the left bank of the Cottonwood River, an interesting discovery of coarse gold has been made by John and Wuekild. This gold occurs on a false bedrock of clay, several feet below an upper false bedrock on which values were mined by old-timers. The old miners did not go below the upper false bedrock and the inference is that the area is well worth extensive re-prospecting.

were taken by police, but no information has yet been obtained as to which direction Miss Scott was walking when the accident happened. The intersection at Flagstaff and 1st is the road and it is believed that Miss Scott was crossing from the corner of Flagstaff Street to where Balmoral Road begins where she was struck down.

FIVE FATALITIES

The fatality is the fifth in four weeks. Albert Moa, who was killed when his car plunged over the Mahat Highway, was the first victim. His death was followed by that of Thomas Watson, customs officer, who was struck down and fatally injured while riding his bicycle; Miss Violet Elderton, who also was struck down while riding a bicycle; Lloyd Edgewood, who was killed by an automobile as he ran across Cook Street; and Miss Scott, who was killed last night.

Police officers who attended the accident were Inspector J. T. Boulton, Sergeant Benjamin Acreman, Constable James Strong and Constable George Hutchison.

Millions May Be Satisfied With Mere Existence—But to You Who Think

The Archeus System

Unfolds a New Science of Life for You! Never Before Given to Mankind!

THROUGH the discovery of the Archeus System the ties that bind us to the ignorant conventions of the past are severed. The veil of silence is rent asunder, and the "star" of hope and good cheer has arisen upon the horizon of time. The dawn of a glorious new day is breaking for the human race.

STARTLING! AMAZING! TRUE!
THE beginning of a New Cycle in the history of man, where the health, wealth, and happiness and harmony that comes from properly understanding the mysteries of life is within the reach of all. The Archeus System is an epoch-maker in the history of human life.

THE Archeus System disproves the theories of practical psychology and the so-called "science of mind." It shows their teachings to be without foundation as to the "science of mind" and further proves there is no such thing as Science of Mind and the Psychology of Life Apart from the underlying, fundamental principles as taught by the Archeus System—a new science never before given to the world—a new truth based squarely upon universal laws heretofore unknown in the field of scientific research, but now given to humanity all within the reach of old and young, the well, the sick, the layman as well as the scientist, the professional man and woman.

SHORT cut to perfection of soul, body and mind. The sure, happiness and overwhelming success.

THE Archeus System puts the twinkles into your eyes; it unfolds a new science of life for you—you never dreamed of having the benefits this teaching has revealed to man.

YOUR life may now be one of drudgery, limitation, monotony, but it need not continue to be so. Get a new vision! Can you imagine a future of real happiness, peace of mind, perfect health, popularity, personal power?

If you can visualize your happiness from this mental picture, but are thus far unable to materialize it, let the Archeus System show you how to bring it to pass in your life.

THE Archeus System teaches as follows: That there is a universal power governing all life, which, when found and used, solves the mystery of all sickness, disease, poverty, old age and death! That this invisible, dynamic power is now discovered and within the reach of all mankind, and can quickly and easily be used through the Archeus System. That this dynamic power is not found within the mind of man, but in the universal law which governs man's mind.

THAT this universal law is the same that created life and has always been in life, but lost to man; but now it has been discovered for man's use and will soon be known to all humanity, so that people everywhere can and will find their lost heritage and come to understand this perfect principle. The world is now passing into a new cycle of time. Only those who understand the laws governing this new cycle will be able to resist. All others must struggle, battle, fight—and fall! Only those who strive lawfully can win success.

Every other science has been but a practical phase of the truth now brought to light. The Archeus System is a new cycle, startling, new, revolutionary, and still so simple, scientific and easily understood that you will marvel at its teachings, and its results.

EVERYONE is invited to write for further details of the Archeus System which is being discussed throughout the world.

Why name a trust company as executor and trustee?

Three outstanding reasons prompt a larger number of men and women, each year, to choose a trust company for this important work.

Experience. An individual may serve as executor but once in a lifetime. A trust company gives every day of its existence to the management of estates.

Responsibility. An individual's financial responsibility is limited. A trust company's responsibility is limited only by the extent of its total assets.

Continuous Existence. An individual's life is uncertain. He may fall ill and be unable to act. He may decline to accept extra duties. But a trust company has perpetual existence and is ready at all times to act.

May we have an opportunity to mention other good reasons why it will pay you to name this company your executor?

Gives Inspiring Address on Bowl Of Great Pacific

Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald Is Guest-Speaker at Meeting of North Saanich Service Club—Reviews Early History of Mighty Ocean and Bordering Nations

THE "Pacific Bowl" was the subject of a highly interesting address given last night to the members of the North Saanich Service Club by Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald, of the B.C. Court of Appeal. Prefacing his remarks with a review of the history of the discovery of the Pacific, and leading up to the progress of commerce and culture among nations bordering on the shores of the great ocean, Mr. Justice Macdonald said, "but rather to stimulate interest in an absorbing topic and to arouse in all of us a desire for further study of a great new era unfolding before us. Even if no material advantage resulted, it is great gain to get the mental attitude of our people attuned to the fact that differences may be reduced to a minimum and the viewpoint of other people ascertained.

"It is important, too, if we are in truth a democracy, that is, a social state where the people control and direct the destinies of nations; doubly so if Canada is rapidly becoming a great Pacific power, that we should have that first essential for making just decisions, namely, knowledge of the subject in hand. We cannot, for example, either justify or condemn British policy in China, or perhaps even know that it is, without a knowledge of the Pacific in that Far Eastern nation for at least the past one hundred years. We should realize, too, that the Pacific is a great experimental station in which we are vitally concerned."

HIGHWAYS OF COMMERCE
"While the Atlantic Ocean," he continued, "has been and always will be a great highway of commerce, we are beginning to realize that Europe may become the back to our national establishment, while the Pacific rapidly assumes the place of a front door entrance. Indeed, there are few studies more fascinating than the shifting panoramic current of events which through the ages has caused civilization to change its moorings and trade bases to shift. The history of civilization is divided into three periods."

"The first was the Potamic period—a word derived from the Greek, meaning a river—the river of civilization in the valleys of great rivers like the Nile, the Indus and the Huang Ho. They congregated there because of the need of the fertile soil and means of transportation. Then as facilities were acquired to travel with greater ease, the Potamic was followed by the Thalassic period, when civilization centered around inland seas like the Mediterranean. Later on civilization, always on the march, entered the third period known as the Oceanic, that is, the period in which we live, and one stage of the Oceanic period is passing before our eyes, because this period has two phases. In the first stage of the Oceanic period the Atlantic was regarded as the ocean centre of the world. Not so today."

A NEW SIGNIFICANCE
"The Pacific and the countries around its rim, with their hinterlands and island groups in the Pacific bowl, is assuming a new significance, while its great ports like Hongkong and Shanghai have reached a place among the world's emporiums matching the great ports of Europe and of the Atlantic seaboard. With this second stage of the Oceanic period came the discovery of the Orient."

"I do not say that the Orient is a new discovery for the Western world. I only say that today it is being discovered anew. Ever since the days of Marco Polo its lure attracted adventurers from Europe, traveling first by an overland highway through Asia. By the sixteenth century all these land roads to the East were either closed or rendered dangerous by Turkish occupation of the centre of the highway—a blessing in disguise—so that travelers were compelled to find a new way to China by sea."

"This was the way opened for the second phase of the Oceanic era. The Portuguese led the way and her navigators reached Japan. Through Portugal history marks the change from the Thalassic to the Oceanic stage. For 300 years she held the commercial supremacy of the world. Portugal was followed by Spain, Holland and Great Britain. Indeed, many of the difficulties in China today are due to this early intrusion on the part of European countries. Here, then, we had the dawn of the Pacific era."

AN INSPIRING STORY
"What an inspiring story of human effort is scattered over the waters of this wonderful ocean. On September 29, 1513, Balboa, a Spanish navigator, first saw the Pacific—the first European to do so—and, ignorant of its vastness, called it Gulf de San Miguel. Several years later Magellan, a Portuguese, who, however, became naturalized as a Spaniard, pushed far out into its unknown waters. He called it Mer Pacifico—the Pacific—account of the steady and gentle winds that drove his fleet across its immeasurable expanse. He reached the Philippine Islands and was their first discoverer. Francis Drake, in the sixteenth century, carried the English flag to the Pacific in the Golden Hind. His mission, however, was not so much to discover new lands, but rather to fight the Spaniards and relieve them of excess baggage."

"The eighteenth century saw English, Dutch and French at work in the Pacific, discovering, charting and annexing all over the ocean, and in the meantime either fighting the Spaniards or one another. Then with the last years of the century a new era was inaugurated. The principal figure was Captain James Cook, the great British navigator, one of the greatest names in the history of Pacific navigation."

"He created a new world out of a hitherto unknown ocean, discovered the Hawaiian Islands, and gave to the world its first detailed knowledge of Australia. The impress of these early voyagers still remains in the Pacific, because we still have European control of many of the South Sea Islands, Great Britain being dominant with the possession of Australia and New Zealand."

JAPAN STANDS ALOOF
"Japan, to obtain whatever was good in Western civilization, still stands aloof, glaring at foreign nations across a wide chasm of acute misunderstanding. It may be—so can tell—that an All-Wise Providence, in directing the destinies of the race, so willed it because, had China, with her great area and large population advanced in power and prestige as rapidly as Japan, the Mongolian race might have secured a dominance inimical to the peace of the world. I hasten to add, however, that the people of China are essentially pacific. This difference and more open-minded reaction by Japan to Western influence is all the more remarkable because much of her earlier culture was transmitted from China. During the seventh and eighth centuries, when our own ancestors were semi-civilized, China was the most advanced and highly cultured empire on earth, and she still clings to her old methods," he declared.

"I said Japan rapidly emerged from the family of nations while China did not. The fact is more curious still when we find that Japan in her early history had the same difficulties with Western powers as China has experienced."

INTERNAL PROBLEMS
"China has many internal problems today, but so far as her external relations are concerned, these concessions are, it is alleged, the whole source of friction. I say 'alleged' because China's real troubles are internal, not external. The internal troubles are political, domestic and economic. They lack social discipline and order."

"However, stated His Lordship, in spite of these conditions, I hope we will not be so biased in our judgment as not to concede that there is ground for the nationalistic spirit in China. Let me say that present British policy is in entire sympathy with that viewpoint. China's right, for example, to control its own tariff is now recognized, so that what she calls unequal treaties may be revised."

PROGRESS IN JAPAN
"So much for China; what about our friends in Japan—Japan, the Great Britain of the East; that much-discussed, much-misunderstood, which, since 1853, when it opened its ports to foreign trade, has gone forward by leaps and bounds. For centuries before that ancient empire, rooted in antiquity, lived its life among curious customs, absolutely to itself. Several hundred years ago when Spanish priests and traders attempted to obtain a foothold in that country, the people of Japan, resenting their intrusion and the Christian message, brought down many of them, killed those that remained, and for two hundred years lived absolutely to themselves behind closed doors."

"A faithful ally of Great Britain under the Anglo-Japanese Alliance for twenty years and a vigorous ally in the late war, we on the coast of British Columbia greatly appreciated the service of the Japanese navy during those eventful days. That alliance, as you know, was recently terminated, or, to speak more correctly, it has been replaced by a four-power treaty entered into at the Washington Conference between Great Britain, France, the United States and Japan, its object being to protect the rights of the high contracting parties in the regions of the Pacific. It is an important treaty. It is to continue for ten years, subject to renewal on usual terms found in such treaties."

"Under its provisions, should any difficulties arise which may disturb the harmonious relations existing, a conference must be held and an effort made to find an amicable solution. It is a miniature League of Nations restricted to Pacific affairs. It is important to us in Canada because the United States is a signatory to that treaty and the problems of Canada, so far as her people on the Western slope are concerned, are identical with those of the people of the United States. We should be able to work out these problems in a friendly and mutually satisfactory manner."

INTEREST OF POWERS
"Then it would be interesting, if time permitted, to study the interests of these powers protected by this treaty in so far as treaties exist in the myriads of islands, far from valueless, scattered over the South Pacific. These islands so thickly strewn the sea that they have been described in the words of Browning as—

"The sprinkled isles,
Lily on lily that replace the sea."
"Robert Louis Stevenson was asked, on leaving one of the Pacific islands, how he would go to Samoa. He said he would just go out and turn to the left. The islands possess more than magic beauty and romantic charm. You have read of the mystic Isles of the South Sea. They possess more than magic mystery. Study conditions in the island of Java, with its population of forty-five millions (did you note the number?) and its infinite variety of resources; Borneo, the fourth largest island of the world, and its resources; Sumatra with its population of six millions and its resources; Singapore, where the British contemplated establishing a naval base with consequences perhaps not now foreseen—and you will find in your research many avenues for study along both commercial and diplomatic lines."

IMMIGRATION POLICY
"There is only one difficult question on the horizon. The question of immigration. This question must not be discussed in a truculent spirit. I am in full agreement with the prevailing sentiment in Western Canada against further immigration of our Japanese or Chinese neighbors into this country, but I believe in discussing it in its proper light, giving the Oriental point of view as well as our own. Let us remember we are dealing with friendly neighbors with whom we want to trade profitably and live in peace. Let us not be afraid of examining their viewpoint to see if they have any grounds of complaint."

"That there has been an economic prejudice against the Oriental on this Western slope, it would be idle to deny," Mr. Justice E. Macdonald said. "I have said 'economic prejudice' and that is a proper phrase. If there is racial prejudice, I hope it will pass away. We have no right to retain racial antipathies against any people on earth. I have no doubt, however, that if colonies of Canadian settlers down in fertile parts of Japan, taking up land and claiming rights of citizenship, prejudice on their part would also develop. The two nations are entirely alike in that respect."

FUTURE POPULATIONS
"But sir, we in Canada have higher reasons still for our attitude on this question. We have reasons of Empire for reserving our outlying dominions for the Caucasian race. You know the British Empire is planted in the seven seas. It girdles the globe. We have Australia and New Zealand in the Pacific. What would happen if in the future (true, far beyond our time, but what of that?) Man counts his age by years, nations by centuries; if these great open spaces of our Empire, the Dominion of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, were people predominantly by another race? "We, looking into the future far beyond our time, foresee the day when the base of our Empire will shift; when the population of this great Dominion, Australia and New Zealand, will exceed that of the British Isles. The whole current of history points in that direction."

TEMPLE OF PEACE
"The great temple of peace must be built in the hearts of mankind. Who are better equipped than men of commerce, to mould and create an enlightened public opinion favorable to the peaceful adjustment of all disputes likely to lead to war? We know that civilization in all probability cannot withstand another world war. The great goal of peace, however, cannot be attained by one nation striving for commercial supremacy over all other nations. History teaches us. The commercial empire of the world was held by the Phoenicians for a thousand years; by the Romans through a whole millennium; by the Venetians for five centuries, and by the Portuguese for three hundred years. These great commercial empires, however, afforded no protection against the ravages of war. They never grasped the new altruistic conception breaking over the horizon of the thoughts of men like the rising sun."

"That nation in future years will be the greatest among the benefactors of mankind and of itself that will be willing to advance the moral, cultural and commercial interests of other nations with whom it deals, raising them, in so far as it can, to a level of prosperity equal to its own. Here the highest principles of morality and material gain join hands, because it is becoming increasingly evident that the prosperity of other countries is a condition of our own," his lordship concluded.

SAANICH RELIEF COST $100,000

Reeve Crouch Confers With Hon. R. W. Bruhn on Municipal Work

Approximately $100,000 will be spent in Saanich on unemployed relief projects, Reeve William Crouch announced yesterday, after holding a conference with Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works.

The reeve, immediately upon his return from the Union of B.C. Municipalities Convention, waited upon the minister and outlined to him Saanich's plan of public works for unemployed relief.

FORWARDED TO OTTAWA
Following the conference, the reeve announced that the programme would be forwarded to Ottawa, and that as soon as the Federal Government gave its approval, work would be started. He pointed out that nothing would be done by the municipality to increase the tax rate, and that the $100,000 would take care of some 300 to 350 married men during the "Winter months. The single men would be given relief by the Provincial Government, he said.

Financing of the programme is based on the payment by the municipality for all material required, and also one-fourth the wages. The remaining costs would be split fifty-fifty between the Provincial and Dominion Governments.

THE PROGRAMME
The programme comprises chiefly road work, as this type of improvement requires more manual labor and thus obviates the necessity of spending large sums on material.

Reeve Crouch said that the Union of B.C. Municipalities had appointed a committee to interview Senator Odeon Robertson when he arrives and discuss with him details of unemployed relief financing.

A Scotman applied for a position on the London police force. He asked him this question: "Suppose a crowd congregated, how would you disperse it quickly?" "I would pass the hat," answered McFarland.

ISLAND FARMERS NOT ASKING AID

Report That Men Were Crowding Into Relief Camps Is Refuted by Capt. M. F. Macintosh, M.P.

"No bona fide resident of Salt Spring Island has gone to any relief camp, and respondents there very much resent a report in the Mainland press which conveyed that insinuation," Capt. M. F. Macintosh, Conservative member for The Islands in the Provincial Legislature, stated yesterday, while visiting in this city.

Captain Macintosh pointed out that some farmers in the Gulf Islands area as a whole depended in slack season on the usual amount of road work that was carried on by the Department of Public Works. It was the fixed policy of the department that road work would be carried on in these areas as in other for The Islands.

years, but there had been no suggestion of men with land usurping the place of others in the relief camps of the province, continued Captain Macintosh.

A SPORTS STADIUM

Among the projects that should be devised for making Victoria a popular resort, one that appears to have been overlooked by most of those who are now making proposals towards this end is the erection of a sports stadium. Victoria is woefully lacking in playing fields and accommodation for spectators of games. There are few cities of the same size throughout the world, similarly interested in sports, where in so many instances spectators would be asked to crowd along the touchlines to see their favorite games. There are fewer cities still which would suffer for so long under the unenviable reputation of having playing fields, apart from that of the Royal Athletic Park and the High School ground, are in a disgraceful condition.

The city is at present laying out a sports field on ground opposite the Armadale subdivision on Niagara Street. As an auxiliary field the project is useful, but it may be doubted if the location is one that can be popularized from the standpoint of spectators, and consequently the revenue that the municipality will derive may be negligible. It is necessary to have a sports stadium situated more centrally, to have such provided with adequate facilities for different games and athletic pursuits, and to have the grounds maintained in turf kept constantly renewed. Out of a stadium of this character, provided the right location were chosen, the city could derive a handsome revenue annually, one that would look after the redemption of the capital expenditure and provide dividends as well. There is no question of the need, and no doubt of the public patronage that would follow the institution of such a facility.

The coming Winter is going to put before the civic authorities a perplexing problem of how to allocate the Royal Athletic Park to various sporting interests. It is the only playing field now available where there can be an admission charge. Sporting organizations cannot thrive on popular enthusiasm alone; they must have monetary returns. This year both soccer and Canadian and English Rugby clubs will be clamoring for the right to use the Royal Athletic Park on Saturdays. The competition for that right will be much more intense than last Winter when a certain amount of ill feeling developed. In fact, the City Council will be brought face to face with a condition when it ought to be persuaded that another year should not be allowed to go by without a concerted plan to provide such a sports stadium as will fulfill the needs of Victoria. The building of a stadium would provide one means of unemployment relief and one which would insure a return in dividends.

To bring about this desirable end it is not enough for the suggestion to be advanced by a newspaper. Those most closely concerned are the sporting organizations themselves. They should be up and doing, bringing all possible argument to bear on the civic authorities. Here is an opportunity for the Playing Fields Association to justify its existence. Support can be secured from all interested spectators of the various athletic pursuits in the community. What is wanted is a concerted effort, sustained until success is won. The fact that a sports stadium has not been established up to now may logically be attributed to lack of cohesive endeavor by those who would benefit most.

PARTIES IN POLITICS

Already the signs are multiplying in Britain that an election there is only a matter of a comparatively short time. It has never been conceivable that a Coalition Government, such as now exists, is anything but a temporary expedient designed for a set purpose and calculated to disappear when that purpose is accomplished. Under the British system, evolved through centuries, a coalition is an anomaly. There, as in all British countries, representative government implies the exercise of executive authority by that party which secures the greatest number of elected followers at the polls. That is the meaning of the giving of a mandate. The present Government in Britain is merely a stop-gap aggregation. There can be no real expression of the people's will until an appeal is made, and no true representative government until such time as Coalition is abandoned and a party representing the will of a majority of the nation seated in power.

All Coalition or National Governments, as they may be more euphemistically called, are executive authorities which are built on compromise. The whole history of the growth of British political institutions, since the days of a Parliament came into being, is one of the rival accomplishments of two great political parties which have proved themselves time and again the compensatory balances in the scheme of government. Those Utopians who dream that there can be a government which responds to all the political aspirations of all the people governed have imagined an anarchy in administration. It is contrary to all the lessons of history. It is a negation of democracy, which is built upon the foundations of political parties representing majority and minority public opinion for the time being. The part of such rival political parties in the scheme of governmental development has been admirably expressed by Lord Macaulay in his History of England. We quote in part:

"The truth is, that though both parties have often seriously erred, England could have spared neither. If, in her institutions, freedom and order, the advantages arising from prescription, have been combined to an extent elsewhere unknown, we may attribute this happy peculiarity to the strenuous conflicts and alternate vicissitudes of two rival confederacies of statesmen, a confederacy zealous for authority and antiquity, and a confederacy zealous for liberty and progress. It ought to be remembered that the difference between the two great sections of English politicians has always been a difference rather of degree than of principle. There were certain limits on the right and on the left which were very rarely overstepped. A few enthusiasts on one side were ready to lay all our laws and franchises at the feet of our kings. A few enthusiasts on the other side were bent on pursuing, through endless civil troubles their darling phantom of a republic. But the great majority of those who fought for the crown were averse to despotism, and the great majority of the champions of popular rights were averse to anarchy. Twice in the course of the seventeenth century the two parties suspended their dissensions and united their strength in a common cause. Their first coalition restored hereditary monarchy; their second coalition rescued constitutional freedom.

"It is always to be noted that these two parties have never been the whole nation, may that they have never, taken together, made up a majority of the nation. Between them has always been a great mass, which has not steadfastly adhered to either, which has sometimes remained inertly neutral, and has sometimes oscillated to and fro. That mass has more than once passed in a few years from one extreme to the other, and back again. Sometimes it has changed sides, merely because it was tired of supporting the same men, sometimes because it was dismayed by its own excesses, sometimes because it had expected impossibilities and had been disappointed. But, whenever it has leaned with its whole weight in either direction, resistance has, for the time, been impossible."

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

Those who so glibly advocate unemployment insurance are quite obviously unaware of the compelling cause of the recent British crisis. There is no such insurance to which the State contributes that does not become a debt. The late Labor Government in Britain, pledged to it, died, pursued its debtful experience until it died from inanition. The conditions which it created are reflected today in the exchange situation throughout the world, in the great money markets and in the state of trade. If there are those in the seats of authority in any country who fail to benefit by the lessons of political happenings in Britain, they are unworthy of being invested with any power.

There is an analogy between the conditions engineered by the British Labor Government and those which prevailed in the West Ham Guardians debate of 1926. Under the administration of that borough of London by a Socialist administration, there was a deficit of $10,000,000. The Socialists themselves became frightened by the financial frankenstein they had called into existence, a monster created at the behest of their unemployed supporters. It became necessary for the Government of the day to appoint a committee of three to save the borough from bankruptcy. The task took three years to accomplish. In 1926 Socialist legislation had raised the number of unemployed in West Ham to 71,000, who were in receipt of the dole. By 1929 the number had shrunk to 15,000. It is recalled that many of the West Ham pensioners, for several years had enjoyed a good time, finally reached the realization that they must work. They then blurted out the agitators that they had really got back to work, and they did so. They had their good time getting something for nothing, and it is that getting something for nothing that the dole implies—a condition that is the antithesis of the primary postulates of political economy.

The British Labor Government fell because it was creating a fine art out of the practice of giving something for nothing. If that policy is reversed by the new Coalition Government, such confidence will be inspired throughout Britain that it is conceivable that within a few years half the number of persons now in receipt of the dole can be absorbed in the labor market. They can be absorbed at a much quicker rate if an import tax of ten per cent were imposed on those foreign articles which can be manufactured in Britain. Something cannot be given for nothing without someone ultimately having to pay the piper.

Lady Houston, who financed Britain's entry in the late Schneider Cup contest, is not disappointed because the race proved a walkover. She now wants Britain to challenge the world's airmen for a Houston Trophy, in addition to which she will award £1,000 to the winner.

Whatever you do, do wisely, and think of the consequences.—From Gesta Romanorum.

Note and Comment

—Goldsmith.

All people make mistakes, and we have made our share of them; but we do not believe the charge can fairly be made that we made a mistake in our original estimate of the character of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald or of the character of the MacDonald Government. Our original estimate of the character of Mr. MacDonald was that as the head of a Government the Prime Minister was an impractical man and a dreamer, more interested in the salvation of the world than in the welfare of his own country. Events have demonstrated that that estimate was sound. Mr. MacDonald during the first years of his administration spent the greater part of his time visiting foreign countries and conferring with foreign statesmen on what should be done to divert the people of nations from thoughts of war to thoughts of peace. Considering the record of the man, that procedure was just what might have been expected. Mr. MacDonald always had a horror of war and always believed that peace at any price was much more to be desired than war at any cost, than even the cost of personal popularity.

While Mr. MacDonald was playing the altruistic part of an evangelist of peace he neglected the business of his own country. He was so ill-informed regarding that business that he did not realize that other members of his Government were rapidly reducing the political and business affairs of Great Britain to a state of chaos. But when the Prime Minister suddenly realized the true state of affairs, he acted promptly and proved to the world that the side of his character displayed was not the only side to his character. The task took three years to accomplish. In 1926 Socialist legislation had raised the number of unemployed in West Ham to 71,000, who were in receipt of the dole. By 1929 the number had shrunk to 15,000. It is recalled that many of the West Ham pensioners, for several years had enjoyed a good time, finally reached the realization that they must work. They then blurted out the agitators that they had really got back to work, and they did so. They had their good time getting something for nothing, and it is that getting something for nothing that the dole implies—a condition that is the antithesis of the primary postulates of political economy.

The change in the attitude of the Prime Minister, and in the attitude of his Chancellor, is all the more remarkable when it is contrasted with the obstinacy with which some other more or less notable public men adhere to their old platitudes and keep on muttering old political and economic shibboleths. Scotsmen are sometimes charged with being down in their adherence to the faith which have been handed down to them from their forefathers, and Yorkshiremen are considered first cousins to Scotsmen in that respect. Mr. MacDonald is softer in speech, more emotional in temperament, and more flexible in mind than Mr. Snowden. Therefore it was not surprising to learn that the Prime Minister had been converted by stubborn facts from the orthodoxy of free trade to the alleged heresy of protection, but it was next to incredible to learn that Mr. Snowden, who during the whole course of his public career had sternly opposed and verbally flouted protection, had recanted and expressed a conviction that the only salvation of the nation depended upon the immediate adoption of a system of protection.

All men, who freely confess their errors are worthy of abolition. But the pity of it is that the Prime Minister and his Chancellor were a trifle belated in discovering the error of their ways—say before or during the last meeting of the Imperial Conference. If the proposals laid before that Conference by Premier Bennett and the other Dominion representatives had been considered and adopted the conditions in Great Britain might have been different today and the future of the Empire might have presented a different aspect. Current thought in Great Britain today is directed towards preferential trade within the Empire as the only hope for the future. Imperial preferential trade, however, while it is a consummation greatly to be desired, cannot be accomplished in a day. There must be negotiations, probably prolonged and delicate negotiations, before the goal can be attained. But if the Imperial Government were to take the first step by the adoption of a system of tariffs, there could be no doubt whatever about the ultimate results.

The British Liberal Party, what there is left of it, is traditionally opposed to protection.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of September 20, 1881.)

Christ Church Ordination—The ordination announced for Sunday next at Christ Church has been postponed until the Sunday following, W. W. Malachi, of W. A. Hastings, Canada, Canterbury, who was to have been here for the occasion, has been delayed by the breaking down of the steamer on the Atlantic.

Pilotage Resolutions—The Nanaimo Pilotage has passed a resolution forbidding their pilots taking vessels above a certain tonnage through Pioneer Pass.

A Runaway—After littering the street with milk cans and spoiling the contents all over the road, a runaway horse was eventually brought under control on Johnson Street yesterday. A charge was later laid against the owner of the animal for leaving the horse unattended in a public place. The case will come up for hearing on Saturday.

posed to protection; but many of the more prominent leaders of the party, not only the members of the party who are members of the National Government, but members who, while still proclaiming their Liberalism, place country above party, have accepted the principle of protection as at least a temporary expedient. Those more enlightened Liberals are so sure of the change of economic sentiment that they will support a policy of protection if adopted by the Government even without the formality of an appeal to the electorate. The Liberal remnant who will combat protection will not carry great weight when placed in the balance against the Conservative majority and the strong protectionist wing of the Labor Party. There will be interesting news from Britain during the present week.

OUR FORESTS
Sir—I ask in all seriousness and with deep concern why we as a community fail to pay attention to many matters of vital importance, and especially when a public-spirited person spends his time and money in trying to arouse us to a sense of duty towards that which affects the community as a whole and posterity as well. We show far too much apathy and appear to be led away from the path that will bring us to prosperity and the building of this magnificent island by the many frivolous and self-destructive moves we make that are neither of lasting advantage to our country nor to those who will come after us. We should arouse our selves and take a deeper interest in the great questions that mean so much to our future and the future of this beautiful city.

There is with us today a person who has often shown deep interest in true public spirit in the matter of how to deal with the forests of this island. I refer to Mr. Frank J. Barnum. What that gentleman has done to arouse public interest in the inestimable value of every resident of this province, providing we do our part. His efforts should be met by an overflow of public approval that will convince him that the people of Vancouver Island are heart and soul with him in the splendid work so ably undertaken by him.

I hope our citizens will take this matter up in earnest and convince Mr. Barnum that we appreciate his laudable efforts which are really of Dominion-wide to arouse public interest in the way of saving the forests of this island and the introduction of a system of reforestation of those parts of the island that have been so ruthlessly dealt with in the past.

As far as those residing here interesting themselves in the question, Mr. C. L. Harrison's excellent work, I do not know of any other person who has done anything along the lines Mr. Barnum advocates. Mr. Harrison, who has certainly done his part in trying to arouse public interest in the matter. In the states of Washington and Oregon societies have been formed to deal with forest protection. Can we not copy their good work by forming societies of that sort here?

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Sir—We all know, and various reports show, that British Columbia and the other Western provinces are suffering from a lack of population. The Peace River alone could absorb several thousand farmers if they had cheap transportation, not to mention the lands suitable for stock-raising along the line of the P.C.E. Railway.

The situation as I look at it seems to call for some sort of creative action on the part of those who have the vision and the courage to tackle it. If our former Governments, Federal and provincial together, could co-operate to complete two transcontinental lines of railway across Canada, surely the same can unite to open up the fertile lands of the West and make these railways a profitable investment.

It seems to me that it is up to us in the West to support to the very limit a well-defined land settlement policy along conservative lines, avoiding the mistakes of the past and not paying exorbitant prices to private parties for land to be developed.

When this road-building is done, for it must come to an end some time, what are we to do with the thousands of men turned back into the ranks of unemployed? Is it not a time now to look ahead and plan for just such a contingency?

Can we not begin now gradually to recruit from the men in temporary Government service, potential farmers and place them on the land, giving them assistance so that they may become, not only wage earners, but home builders. Empire builders if you like? Road-making is well and good. Tourist trade is all right. But what we need are permanent Canadian citizens. What's the use of railroads and motor roads if no one is living along them? The question in my mind is this: Are we building for the fluctuating transient population, or are we following a constructive policy which will mean the permanent development and colonizing of our province?

E. B. SHAW.

BANK DEPOSITS AND LABOR

Sir—Your issue of the 13th says: "Figures reveal golden lining in Dominion's cloud of depression"—and goes on: "Ten million people have $45,000,000 in savings banks, or $4,500,000 more than a year ago, according to an official statement issued by the Federal Department of Finance." No doubt the number of owners are also known to the department. If these were ascertained and graded we should have another fact.

It may be assumed that it is not owned by 10,000,000. More likely by one-fifth, 2,000,000, and since you say it is $45,000,000 more than a year ago, with a constantly diminishing number of workers to date, the depositors must be from amongst the 3,284,000 workers I have used in my reasoning, and the increase substantiates the claim that much of it is from the difference in the cost of living due to its continued reduction.

There is no doubt that the proposed system of relief will make business better in itself, but it will hardly permit the participants becoming depositors so that we are bound to assume that the depositors are and will continue to be from amongst the immunes from unemployment. A laudable condition if all were participants, but when its realization depends upon 15 per cent of workers being shut out from the opportunity of participating, it has created a problem requiring a better solution than the humiliation of the unfortunate with the accompanying intensification of taxation, added to an already unbearable burden. The division and circulation of some of the deposits referred to would go a long way to bringing business back to normalcy.

Doubtless the amount of deposits held is a fact and not a mere premise. Intelligent regulation of the hours, or even minutes of labor, reducing or increasing as emergency required, offsetting and keeping pace with labor-saving machinery, could be devised and operated like the governors of an engine, which when most clean is wanted compresses, and when less is required expands.

Let us assume that of the $36,000,000 there are three-fifths ($21,600,000) with dependents of only three on the average. They represent three times their number, $63,000, plus $21,000, a total of 1,284,000 being affected, equaling 12.8 per cent of the population.

It is obvious that to avoid additional cumulative crushing taxation resulting from loans we must distribute the needed work and the pay, as additional taxation will only aggravate and add to surrenders of taxable property.

It is noted in your issue of the 6th inst. that eighty employers of labor in Portland, Ore., have agreed to establish a six-hour day with no change in the hourly rate of pay, so that two points in my letter of the 8th inst. are recognized.

IMPRESSIONS STILL VIVID

Colorful Incidents of Ceremony at London Bridge Opening Reviewed

When the centenary of the opening of London Bridge was celebrated not so long ago, a letter was published in The Times, which gave some vivid impressions of the original ceremony, a lively personal note making it capital reading. It was furnished by a man who discovered the missing among his grandfather's papers.

The writer had set down the fact that his party had been invited by a wharf owner, whose property was on the city side of the river, to be on the scene by nine in the morning, "and after the ceremony we were to dine with our friendly host, which we supposed would be soon after 2 o'clock. Alas, we were doomed to remain hungry till 8 o'clock in the evening. There was a large party of us, about thirty, and none of us had thought it necessary to bring any provisions with us. The king was not punctual, and it was 6 o'clock in the evening before the bridge was declared open."

POLICE TREK FAR TO LOCATE STILL

Ninety Miles From Calgary—
Two Arrested

CALGARY, Sept. 19 (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police penetrated the foothill country northwest of Calgary for ninety miles to stem the flow of illicit liquor from a still secreted in the rolling territory. In police court today it was related how the officers made the trek by automobile and on foot to arrest John Measoff and Charles Davis, who pleaded guilty to manufacturing liquor illegally.

The magistrate sentenced the two men to two months imprisonment and fined them $200 each. Police revealed that liquor from the still in the wide-open spaces had been sold in Calgary in large quantities. It was brought into the city by wagon and team, they declared. Measoff claimed he entered the "game" to make sufficient money to return home to Germany. He asked to be deported when his jail term expired.

water; happily he was soon rescued, but he also vanished for a time." When the ceremony was at last over, there was a general rush to get away and many small boats capsized; "those who were sitting on the parapet of the bridge were so tired that several of them dropped into the water and were drowned"; and, to make matters worse, the incoming tide was a strong one and barges got adrift in all directions. "We were all truly thankful to get to land and to get some refreshments after our long fast."

FINE VARIETY OF BULBS AT MARKET

Stallkeepers Offer Excellent Brands in Preparation for Planting Season Drawing Near

Preparing for the forthcoming demand from local gardeners, growers' stalls at the City Market yesterday displayed a varied show of bulbs. Chief among these were the tulip and daffodil bulbs. It is, as yet, a little early for the planting of the latter two, but despite this large sales were recorded.

The principal flowers to be found yesterday were gladioli, but it is now late in the season for them. Fresh walnuts and hazel nuts, both of excellent quality, were obtainable at one of the stalls, and sold well.

MEAT PRICES LOWER

All meat prices were a little lower yesterday, and consequently a slight increase in business was noted by stallkeepers.

Weddings

McKERNON-FOSTER

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Christ Church Cathedral last night at 9 o'clock, when Very Rev. Dean C. S. Quinton officiated at the marriage of Muriel, elder daughter of the late Mr. J. W. Foster and Mrs. Foster, Edmond, and Mr. Archibald F. McKernon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. McKernon, 417 Young Street, Victoria. The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, wore a pretty frock of egg-shell satin cut in the new lines, and a hat of mohair in a deeper shade, fashioned with a bandeau of French flowers beneath the brim in front. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, barvadilla and white heather. Mr. Charles Dodson attended the groom. A small reception followed the service at the home of the groom's parents, where the decorations were carried out in white and pink, the bride's cake having the place of honor on the supper table. Mr. and Mrs. McKernon left later for Vancouver en route for a motor tour in the States, the bride traveling in a black velvet frock and Empress Eugenie hat, and a short fur coat. They will make their home in Victoria, where E. Cockman arrived from California for the wedding.

Schubert Club

Studies Poems In Repertoire

Preparing the way for the season's activities, the Schubert Club has commenced the study of some of the literature as well as the music represented in their programmes. At the first rehearsal a paper was read by Mrs. Hammond on Andrew Lang, author of the fine romantic poem, "My Love Dwell in a Northern Land," and the composer of the inspiring music by Sir Edward Elgar. This piece is included in the repertoire of the club and the descriptive essay provided a desirable atmosphere, without which no successful interpretation is possible. The club fully appreciated Mrs. Hammond's contribution to the musical practice.

At the same meeting, plans for the coming season's programme were presented to the members by the president, Mrs. Sheppard, and the recommendations of the executive were heartily endorsed.

After due deliberation, the Schubert Club has decided to offer one regular recital before the musical public of Victoria, which will be given on February 2, and wishes to announce that it will have as its visiting artist Arthur Johnson, one of the most finished singers on the Pacific Coast. Frederick King presided.

SHE WORRIED ABOUT HER WEIGHT

"I started taking Kruschen Salts a month ago. I have lost 50 pounds in weight, and I feel as if I have lost 50 pounds. I am full of vigor, whereas before I was worried about my condition, as I was listless and worried over little things. But I am thankful to say that, were my troubles doubled, they would not worry me today—thanks to Kruschen."—Miss V. F.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat—take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning, for "It's the daily dose that takes off the fat." Don't miss a morning. Kruschen daily means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system. Modify your diet, and take gentle exercise. The stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are tuned up, and the pure, fresh blood containing these six salts is carried to every part of the body, and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure. Face, Neck, Head Covered With Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face, neck and head were covered with pimples that were hard and inflamed. They were always itchy, causing me to scratch, which made them worse. They bothered me for several years and nothing seemed to help the trouble. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it I could see a slight improvement in my skin. I decided to buy some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in short time my pimples were all gone. I was healed." Varied Activities of Women

Children's Travel Club Proves Popular Feature

Victoria children have been doing considerable traveling during the Summer holidays. They have been listening to the tales told in old China, they have been playing with kimono-clad children in sunny Japan, with Eskimo babies in the frozen Northland and the dark-eyed kiddies under Southern Italian skies. The banks of the "great, grey, greasy Limpopo River," and the shining snow-capped mountains of Switzerland have called them. It has been a very busy Travel Club, which was organized by Miss King in the children's room at the Victoria Public Library at the beginning of the holidays, and the little travelers, tired but delighted with their journeyings, have now returned to school.

It was indeed a happy "brain wave" which set the kiddies on their journeys and through the medium of the fascinating travel books about people and places in far-away lands, much valuable information has been acquired and great enthusiasm shown by the little readers. When the holidays began, Miss King had a large number of maps drawn, which each little would-be traveler signed and which was to be a record of his or her wanderings in Bookland.

Not only did they read the books, but many of the children wrote letters to imaginary friends, telling what they were seeing as they traveled about, and many of the letters showed that the writers had an amazingly clear and comprehensive grasp of all they were reading about.

WILL HAVE PARTY

The interest was intense and the competition keen. The number of stars on some of the maps of the busiest readers almost covered the plain white paper. It proved both an educational and a very absorbing pastime for the children who are looking forward to the Travel Club party which will wind up the book travel of the Summer.

A prize will be given to the child who has shown the keenest interest and finest appreciation of the advantages of the club.

Such letter! Such refreshing fragrance, such skin softening and cleansing!

TODAY'S RECIPE

CASSEROLE Grouse.—For this recipe you require a brace of grouse, some butter, pepper, salt, cayenne, ground mace, and some good brown gravy. Work the seasoning well into the butter, and roll the latter into a ball. Make two of these balls, putting one into each bird. Now put the birds, with the hearts, liver, necks and gizzards into an earthen stewing jar—one fitted with a lid. Put one or two lumps of butter seasoned like those in the birds, on the grouse; add a little brown gravy, and stew in a moderate oven, until cooked, basting frequently with the seasoned butter. Serve in the same jar with browned breadcrumbs and bread sauce, or any other sauce preferred.—Prudence.

ORPHANAGE ANNUAL POUND PARTY WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

The annual British Columbia Protestant Orphanage pound party will take place on Wednesday afternoon, September 23, when donations of groceries, cereals, flour and other staples as well as fruit and vegetables or cash will be welcomed.

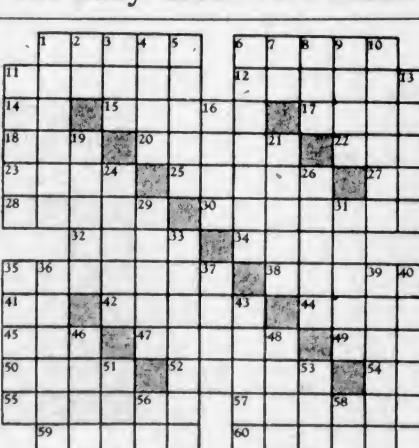

The committee in charge of arrangements confidently looks to the numerous friends of the institution to support the undertaking in the customary generous way.

The new nursery for very small children, which has been furnished by the Commodore Broughton Chapter, I.O.D.E., will be opened the same afternoon, and visitors will be given an opportunity to inspect this attractive addition to the Orphanage. The Victoria Girls' Band will be in attendance and tea will be served.

Metchoin

The first general meeting of the Metchoin and District Club was held at Metchoin Hall. There was a most gratifying attendance, and a large number of new members. The meeting was opened by the vice-president, Mrs. C. H. Helgeson, in the unavoidable absence of the president, Major H. Meredith-Jones, then gave his report, and a very able resume of the past achievements and future aims of the club. Electric light has been installed in the hall, and the next objective will be to install the water system. A most varied and interesting programme has been arranged by the acting committee for the Winter season. The first of the series being the pioneer entertainment to take place on October 23. A suggestion was made as to the formation of a local orchestra, and various other matters were discussed. After a vote of confidence in the acting committee, the meeting adjourned for dancing and cards. The winners of the bridge prizes are as follows: Auction bridge, Mrs. Meredith-Jones and Mr. Pearce, first, and Mrs. Pearce, second. Contract bridge, Mrs. Tremayne and Mr. H. Jordan, highest scores. Supper was conveyed by Mrs. T. Barclay, ably assisted by others.

Woolens Are Popular For Autumn Fashions

The fall that precedes the opening of the more important dress collections is broken to some extent by various demonstrations of the new Autumn materials, says a Paris Correspondent to The London Times. As might be expected, these show the influence of the Colonial Exhibition in coloring in the revival of metallic materials for afternoon use and for accessories such as bags, and in design, which has a distinct touch of the East.

Generally speaking, everything is very much more fanciful in patterns predominate. Where stuffs appear plain they very often have complicated patterns in their weaves. A notable difference between the coming season and the last is a marked diminution in the use of black. Also, instead of black and white there is black and color, the color often being green.

RED FAVORED
A great deal of red is to be seen in the Winter. Sometimes it is wine-red with a brownish tinge. Tomato also appears, and in some cases scarlet. Where these colors are not used plain they appear among such mixtures as tweeds. Almost all the mixed materials, while avoiding effects that are startling, have a brighter, richer hue.

There are many greens, from the bottle shade to bright grass-green. Navy appears again, and dark brown is to be seen in that perennial mixture, brown and beige. Dark purples are to be used, mostly with other colors. There are shades of blue and color contrasts in blues, such as black, purple-blue, and white; French blue, red and white, and red with very lively greens.

SOFT WOOLENS
Lightness and suppleness are the keynote of most weaves. They have been brought to such a pitch that, since wool can be moulded to the figure just as well as silk, this bids fair to be a woolen season. Some of the dress woools are indeed so light and fine that undergarments are indispensable with them. At the same time there are a great many very loose weaves. Homespun effects are seen and there are many bouclé materials. Irregular basket weaves are much liked.

Rough and spongy materials serve for coats, and in conjunction with finer varieties, for coats and dresses or coats and skirts. A number of coolen materials are made in both a fine and a coarse weave and are then used together. Black satin is to be revived, but chiefly for Autumn suits and for afternoon frocks. These have not been much seen for a year or so and their revival is likely to be welcomed.

NEWEST WEAVES
Design tends chiefly towards patterns, or, if not patterns, then towards their equivalent in depth or contrast of coloring. There are many checks, both plain and broken; broken and plain lines running perpendicularly; sun-spots, diagonals. The Persian influence is clear. Sometimes the design is in the weave of the material alone, after the manner of damask. There are chevron weaves which are much

The time-tried Daisy Boiler, now improved for still greater heating efficiency, is part of a complete assembly of Warden King heating materials for homes, business buildings, schools, and all purposes.

PROVEDand now IMPROVED

TIME HAS PROVED beyond all question the quality of Warden King heating products. Seventy-nine years ago, Warden King Limited was founded. Steadily since, it has kept the confidence of Canadian builders and home-makers.

Service has proved the merit of Daisy Boilers. In 75,000 Canadian homes and hundreds of commercial buildings they are giving dependable, even warmth.

Now, both Daisy Boilers and Warden King Radiators have been improved. In the boiler, inclined sections give positive circulation; grates require no bolts or pins and can be easily lifted out and replaced;

The new Warden King Radiator meets the modern demand for beauty and heating efficiency with their graceful lines and slender columns.

extra deep fire pot satisfactorily burns soft or hard coal, coke, many grades of fuel; clinker door is arranged for easy installation of oil burning equipment; the base in one piece reduces air leakage.

The radiators have been given graceful columns for a beauty that adorns a room interior. These cast iron radiators have been thoroughly proved both by scientific tests and actual service. We recommend them as being more efficient than copper or any type of indirect radiation yet developed.

Let us send you full information. Any heating contractor will make the installation.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP).—A charge of wilfully maiming was yesterday laid against Sanford Hope, eighteen, in county police court. The indictment carried with it a maximum penalty of life imprisonment. The charge was laid in connection with a collision between Hope's car and a motorcycle, driven by Highway Traffic Constable Morris Noble, of Caledonia, on August 18, on the highway to Simcoe.

Three girls, passengers in Hope's car, testified Hope deliberately crashed into Noble's cycle and then sped off, leaving the officer in the ditch. Noble was severely injured.

IMMIGRATION LAWS WAIVED TO ASSIST HONDURAN REFUGEES

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Interior Department has instructed Federal officers at Payo Obispo, Quintana Roo, to disregard immigration requirements in the cases of refugees from British Honduras, who are reported to be migrating to Mexican territory by the hundreds.

The officers were told to do everything possible in behalf of the refugees, the majority of whom are without means of support and in many instances without adequate clothing because of the recent hurricane. They are to be allowed to remain until conditions in British Honduras permit their return.

U.B.C. CLASSES TO BE SMALLER

Registration at University
Light—Limitation Not Likely Necessary

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19.—The seventeenth session of the University of British Columbia will open Monday, when new students of all years will meet in the auditorium at 2 p.m. to hear an address by President L. S. Klink. Following this, groups of newcomers will be conducted on a tour of the campus by senior students.

Official welcome by Chancellor R. E. McKee will be given Tuesday afternoon. Lectures will commence Wednesday morning.

Registration closed Friday, but no official figures are available. It is understood, however, that the number in attendance will be considerably less than in former years, due in a measure to increased fees. University officials doubt whether it will be necessary to enforce the rule limiting the freshman class to 500.

The calendar, recently issued, gives evidence of the policy of economy. Fewer professors and assistants are on the staff as a result, a considerable number of standard courses have been dropped. It is reported there will be a smaller appropriation for laboratory equipment and research work.

Campaign for B.C. Products' Week to Be Waged Strongly

Preparations are being made by the Junior Chamber of Commerce for its participation in an active campaign during the week October 3-10, which is to be known as British Columbia Products Week. The success which has attended the efforts of the Junior Chamber in its home products campaign prompted the senior chamber to join in the whole task connected with the coming British Columbia week over to the Junior body.

The move for the campaign in October originated with the British Columbia products department of the Vancouver Board of Trade, which has been organizing a simultaneous campaign throughout the whole province. Under the chairmanship of H. G. Fowler, of Vancouver, the department is memorializing the various bodies throughout the province, showing that there has been between $180,000 and $200,000 which found its way into the pockets of the working men of British Columbia during the past year by the efforts put forward in support of buying British Columbia products.

Still more can be done in this direction, it is pointed out, and residents of the province are being urged to take the campaign seriously and press for support.

EXCHANGED GREETINGS WITH UNDERSEA CRAFT

HONGKONG, Sept. 19 (AP).—The master of the Dollar liner, President Taft, tinkering with the ship's wireless in the harbor, today picked up a message direct from the submarine Nautilus and exchanged greetings with Sir Hubert Wilkins. The latter reported he was heading for Bergen, Norway, 150 miles distant.

Tom: Gladys, on what grounds does your father object to me?
Gladys: On any grounds within a mile of the house.

"TERMS SO EASY"

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

COUNTING THE CONCEALED HANDS

Some bridge players are so obsessed with the importance of counting the holding of every player at the table that they waste their own time and that of other players by doing so when the count means nothing.

There are many hands at the contract table which are described by their players as "pianolas," that is, they play themselves. To count distribution on this type of hand is a waste of effort. However, there are many hands in which it is important to know how the suits are distributed and to so plan the play that this knowledge can be turned into tricks.

Below is given a good illustration of the value of suit placing in its relation to the play of the hand. South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

♠ A 9 3
 ♥ 8 4 2
 ♦ 10 7 3
 ♣ A 7 5 3
 ♠ J 6
 ♥ K 9 8 6 4
 ♦ K 10 8 4
 ♣ Q 9 8 7 5 3
 ♠ K 4 3
 ♥ A K 4
 ♦ Q J 7
 ♣ K J 6 3

THE RIDDING

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
2NT(1) Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass

1. South's hand does not contain a biddable suit. It has five biddable tricks and this fact makes the risk of a pass by partner over a bid of one a very real one. Therefore, the hand justifies opening with a bid of two no trump.

West was faced with the selection of a lead from a hand full of undesirable leads. Neither the club suit, which he holds an honor tenace, nor the diamond suit are particularly attractive as an opening lead. However, both the spade and the heart suits do not offer particularly desirable "warning" lead openings as the lead of the knave in either instance is conventionally considered to indicate the top of a sequence, but even more frequently such combinations as A J 10 or K J 10. Thus situated, West selected for his opening his fourth best diamond. North and East played low and South won with the queen. South now undertook the development of his longest suit and led a low club to finesse the knave on the return.

On the second round of the suit East failed to follow and this located the missing cards of the suit with East. Instead of winning with the king, South played the low card and West was again forced to choose a lead. It was apparent that to lead a diamond would present South with a trick, so he was again forced to a choice between hearts and spades. The spade lead appeared dangerous because of the honor showing in the dummy, but actually whether West now leads a heart or a spade is immaterial. West's heart knave was permitted to hold the trick. This was for the purpose of obtaining a count on the hand. West continued the hearts and South, of course, won.

The next four tricks were taken with the ace of hearts, the ace and king of spades and the king of clubs and now West was again thrown in the lead with the "knave of clubs." His hand thus stripped of everything but clubs and diamonds, West was compelled to lead a diamond to South's queen.

Played in this accurate manner South made three diamonds, two clubs, two hearts and two spades. Any other method of play would have resulted in a defeated contract.

TODAY'S POINT
In selecting a lead again—no trump bid and holding a hand powerful in attack, lead from the suit in which more tricks can be established with the fewest re-tries. It is usually the longest suit and either an honor or length lead is used, depending on the structure of the suit. When choosing between your own and your partner's suit, always consider the partnership hands as a unit and select a suit which offers the best chance for establishment and re-entries.

AN UNUSUAL RECORD
A most unusual record in duplicate contract bridge was made by David Burnstine, of New York, who was a contestant in all five of the major events at the Summer Congress of the American Bridge League at Asbury Park in late July. In only one of these events did he fail to finish as high as second, that being the mixed pair contest for the cup given by Mrs. Olga J. Hilliard.

His record was:
Mixed team-of-four, tied for first.
New Jersey State pair championship, won with Waldemar von Zedwitz as partner.
Masters' paid contest, won with Howard Schenken as partner.
Challenge trophy for teams-of-four, won with Willard Karn, Oswald Jacoby and P. H. Sims as teammates.

Mr. Burnstine in all of these contests played the forcing system of bidding. He is a player of marked ability and his skill is amply attested by his winning record with many different partners. Of course his partner also were players of skill and in no way is this meant to detract from giving them their share of the credit for the joint victories.

SAFETY PLAYS
A safety play is any play which is calculated not to lose more than a certain number of tricks. In general it gives up all or the best chance for the maximum; for instance, if the declarer can afford to lose one trump trick and still make his contract there are a number of cases where he practically "concedes" this one trick in order to gain an additional insurance against losing two tricks. One of the most common cases in point is the following: Declarer holds A Q 10 x x x, dummy x x x; the safety play consists of leading the ace from the declarer's hand and subsequently low from dummy. "This will not lose more than one trick unless the K J x or K J x x is to the left of the declarer, in which case no play will succeed, but will eliminate a difficult guess should the holding be K J alone or the singleton king. Here are two other examples:

1. Declarer holds A 10 8 x x x. Lead the king from dummy, then low, finessing the 10 if second hand again plays low. This play loses two tricks only against Q J x x to the left of declarer, which is unavoidable.

2. Declarer holds K 9 x x x, dummy A J x. Lead the ace from dummy and subsequently a low card from the declarer's hand to the dummy's knave. This play will lose two tricks against five trumps in one hand only.

It should be of interest to the average player to study the above plays and note how, if used regularly, they will save the loss of many games generally ascribed to "tough luck."

CFCT Studio Players

To Return Wednesday

The Studio Players of CFCT are returning to the air.

This interesting fact has been made public by the Victoria Broadcasting Association, who also announce that this clever company will be heard in a most elaborate presentation—a mystery serial, entitled "The Mystery of Harlow Manor."

This group of radio actors have now been off the air for more than two months, at which time they concluded a series of twenty complete stories. In the meantime many enquiries have been received at the studios concerning the future activities of the Studio Players, and the return of these radio artists will be welcomed.
